Strawberry moon

We love science and all things space at Heckington St Andrew's and today, June 24th sees a new full moon cycle and this time around we are going to be treated to a 'Strawberry Moon'!

The moon will be in its highest point in its orbit and its position in the atmosphere over the next couple of days should give it a pinky/red tint. But this isn't why it gets its name- can you find out why this moon gets its berry red name? We would love to see any photos you can capture of this strawberry moon, and while you are gazing for this lunar magic, also keep an eye out for Venus in the sky as it is due to be the brightest planet during this time. Please share any sightings of the moon or Venus on Seesaw! What else can you find out about this lunar event?
